You are invited to attend
a presentation by UTHSC Simulation Center Executive Director Candidate

Chad A. Epps, MD
Associate Professor
President-Elect, Society for Simulation in Healthcare
Associate Director, Office of Interprofessional Simulation
UAB | The University of Alabama at Birmingham

“Simulation’s Role in Addressing Healthcare Needs”

Date & Time: Tuesday, October 27, 2015, 8:00am – 9:00am
General Education Building A104, 8 S. Dunlap St.
University of Tennessee Health Science Center
Memphis, Tennessee 38163

Immediately followed by an informal Q & A discussion from 9:00am – 9:30am

Please use the link below to access video recording:
http://mediaserver.uthsc.edu/uthscms/Play/8a50e74d174e4477b686d70454b84eee1d

Chad Epps, MD trained in Anesthesiology at the Mount Sinai Medical Center and completed a fellowship in Human Patient Simulation at Mount Sinai’s Human Emulation Education and Evaluation Lab for Patient Safety and Professionalism. He is currently an Associate Professor at the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB), holds academic appointments in four schools (Medicine, Health Professions, Nursing, and Engineering), and is the Associate Director for UAB’s Office of Interprofessional Simulation. As a fellow, faculty, and director of simulation he has been active in simulation education, research, assessment, and center management for the past 10 years. The UAB simulation team has successfully constructed an organizational model for implementing high quality interprofessional simulations across the enterprise, including both the University and Health System. Dr. Epps is President-Elect of the Society for Simulation in Healthcare and past Chair of the Council on Accreditation of Healthcare Simulation Programs. He is published in the areas of simulation-based interprofessional education and co-edited the recently released textbook Defining Excellence in Simulation Programs (Lippincott Williams & Wilkins, 2014).